Dumplings with Royal Baking Powder

No dessert is more delicious, wholesome and appetizing than a well-made dumpling, filled with the fruit of the season. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the crust is always rendered light, flaky, tender and digestible. Dumplings made with it, baked or boiled, will be dainty and wholesome, and may be eaten steaming hot with perfect impunity.

RECIPE.—One quart of flour; thoroughly mix with it three teaspoons of Royal Baking Powder and a small teaspoon of salt; rub in a piece of butter or lard the size of an egg, and then add one large potato, grated in the flour. The butter is well mixed, stir in milk and knead to the consistency of soft biscuit dough; break off pieces of dough large enough to close over four quarters of an apple (or other fruit as desired) without rolling, and lay in an earthen dish (or steamer) and steam until the fruit is tender. Bake if preferred.

In all receipts calling for cream of tartar and soda, substitute Royal Baking Powder. Less trouble, never fails, makes more appetizing and wholesome food and is more economical. Royal Baking Powder is specially made for use in the preparation of the finest and most delicate cookery.

Seen by a Milkman at the Carlson Cottage.

MORE DAMAGING EVIDENCE.

Testimony That Seriously Connects Two of the Prisoners With the Conspiracy. What Was Seen at the Carlson Cottage on the Night of the Murder—More Police Officials Testify—Witnesses from Illinois.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—When the case was resumed Thursday morning Coroner Henry Hertz was called to the witness stand. After relating how the inquest came to be called to investigate the death of Dr. Cronin, and how the different articles of evidence came into his possession, he identified the trunk in court as the same which was turned over by him to the chief of police. He also identified the key with which the lock of the trunk was opened.

Mr. Forrest's cross-examination was confined to a few questions about how the coroner first got the trunk. Mr. Forrest's point was to show that there were times when the trunk was not properly guarded from possible tampering with by persons inimical to the defense. Mr. Hertz first saw the trunk in the court room, where the inquest was held. It was brought thither by policemen and a deputy coroner.

William Mertes, the milkman, was then called. After inquiring the name and occupation of the witness, Judge Longenecker asked Mertes if he knew where the Carlson cottage is, and if he was near there on May 4. Witness replied that he knew where the cottage is and that he was near there the time mentioned. He was asked to tell in his own way what he saw and heard. Judge Wing, for the defense, objected, but Judge McCounell permitted the witness to proceed.

Mertes told his story in a clear tone of voice and faced the jury. He said: "I was on the east side of Ashland avenue near the Carlson cottage about 8:30 o'clock. I saw two men drive up to the cottage in a buggy. The horse that pulled the buggy was a dark brown, with a white face. A big fellow got out of the buggy, went up the steps, and it looked to me as if he had keys and let himself in. As soon as he entered the other man drove rapidly away. When he turned I saw his face very plain. He was a little man with a big forehead. He had no beard. He looked to be about 20 years old. The man who went into the cottage was a big high-shouldered man. I went down to the grocery store and stayed there about an hour. The store is a block and a half south of Ashland avenue. When I came back by the Carlson cottage I heard noises like there was nailing. There was a small light in the house. I went home and stayed all night."

When asked if he had been seen those men since, witness said: "Yes," and identified Kunze and Dan Coughlin as the men. The identification by the witness was dramatic in the extreme. "The fellow that stayed in the buggy," he said, "is that fellow there. John Kunze, on the pillow there, and the fellow who went into the cottage was that fellow sitting there next to Mr. O'Sullivan," pointing at Dan Coughlin. At this damning statement every eye was turned on the two prisoners. Even Luther Laffin Mills swung himself round in his chair and regarded them intently. But to all appearances they were more cool and collected than anybody else in the court room. A faint smile played over the ex-detective's face while Kunze flushed a trifle. The witness was cross-examined by Judge Wing and said that he picked Kunze out of a long line of men in the station. He had stood looking at the man in the buggy for fully five minutes, and the man looked at him sharply too. "I never saw a man look like he did at me," said the witness.

Mertes went on to say that he fully recognized Coughlin when he saw him in the county jail. This evidence troubled the ex-detective. His face and neck became suffused with blood and his eyes grew moist.

The cross-examination developed the fact that judge Wing had called upon the witness at his house and put him through a course of sprouts in the way of an examination. Mertes, however, had been warned by Capt. Schuettler to tell nobody the evidence he was going to give and finding himself unable to shake off the attorney for the defense, he had told him a fairy story. It was upon this trial the cross-examination was based, and, as a result, the lawyer found himself treading on dangerous ground. The witness frankly admitted that he had lied to the lawyers because he had been told to say nothing to anybody, adding: "That was in my house, but this is different. In my house I tell whatever I please. When I come in court I swear by God to tell the truth, and, by God, I tell the truth."

At this there was loud applause, which caused Judge McCounell to say that if the demonstration was repeated he would adjourn long enough to clear the court and then resume the trial.

The cross-examination continued for over an hour, but the witness did not vary in his story.

Oleifer Lorch, who was one of the first to enter the Carlson cottage, described its condition, and told of finding the paint spotted key under the wash stand in the front room. The key was placed in evidence and the court took a recess.

Ex-Captain Schaeck, of the Chicago Avenue station, was the first witness at the afternoon session. He testified to his conversations with O'Sullivan on May 5 and May 23. The ice man denied that he belonged to the Clan-na-Gael and gave the witness a very unsatisfactory account of his relations with Dr. Cronin. O'Sullivan reluctantly admitted that he had talked with Coughlin by telephone shortly before the murder and while the latter was a detective under Schaeck and that he made inquiry about Kunze.

Chief of Police Hubbard was the next witness, and his appearance on the stand caused a ripple of excitement, it having been understood that he would have something sensational to reveal. He was first asked about the custody of the trunk since it was given to the coroner. He said it had been in his sole care until delivered to the state's attorney. This was also true regarding the lock and key. The chief identified Suspect Burke as the Burke he had first seen in the Winnepeg jail, and the direct examination ended, much to the disappointment of the spectators. Attorney Wing tried to bring out what the chief knew about his client, Coughlin, but the judge refused to permit him, as Coughlin had not been mentioned in the direct.

Police Captain Schuettler next told of his connection with the case, on which he had been working since the beginning. He first heard of the Carlson cottage on the night of May 22, the day the body was discovered, and went into it the next day. Among the things he found there was a piece of blood-stained soap, on which was some hair. He told of the footprints on the blood-stained floor, and upon being shown pieces of the flooring that had been taken up identified them. The witness controverted the theory of the defense that the trunk in the court was not the one found in Evanston avenue by indicating to the jury an identification mark made on it by him last May.

Before the conclusion of the cross-examination court adjourned.

Witnesses from Peoria.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 8.—John Downs and Thomas Fallon, the men referred to by Edward Spelman during the cross-examination while testifying in the Cronin case, were yesterday summoned to Chicago to give evidence in the same trial, and left for Chicago last night. Downs and Fallon are the men who Spelman says convinced him that he had made a mistake in what he swore to before the grand jury. Both men are members of the Clan-na-Gael.

HYDROPHOBIA.

A Man Dies from the Bite of a Dog Received Seventeen Years Ago.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Nov. 8.—About two weeks ago Mr. M. S. Oaks, of Decatur, Ala., formerly of this county, was thought to be insane, and steps were taken for his removal to the asylum at Auburn, but he grew worse and died last Saturday.

Sunday his remains were brought to this county and buried at his old home. It now develops that he died of hydrophobia, the effects of a dog bite received seventeen years ago. Dr. J. R. Slaughter, of near Madison, states that he cut out part of the flesh on the arm, including the bite at the time, and advised amputation of the arm, but Mr. Oaks' father, who was also a physician, did not think it necessary, and it was not done. Dr. Slaughter now claims, from the symptoms, that Oaks died of hydrophobia.

THE DEVIL'S AGENTS.

Girls Enticed From Home, Drugged, Debauched and Held as Prisoners.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 8.—Some months ago an advertisement appeared in the Toronto newspapers for young girls to "take lucrative positions in the western states," and a large number of Toronto girls applied for positions. About a dozen of the applicants were engaged and handed over to a woman to whom they were introduced by the agent. Under the guidance of the procurer they left Toronto. The girls were told they would first be sent to Chicago and after that sent from there and distributed by employment agencies to various parts of the country, according to their choice. But this promise was never fulfilled.

From Chicago the girls were shipped to Denver, Col. On the first night of their arrival in Denver they were driven out some distance on the pretense of being taken to a large hotel. They halted for the night at a lumber camp, where they were drugged and debauched, and forced to remain in the lumber camp on pain of death if escape was attempted.

For two months they were subjected to most inhuman treatment, and finally five of the Toronto girls escaped. Three of them found employment in Chicago, where they are now living, while the other two arrived in Toronto Wednesday morning and told their story.

The girls are of respectable families and for the present desire that their names be withheld. It is said that the procurer is on her way to Toronto again to secure a fresh supply of girls.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 8.—A Chattanooga, Tenn., special to the Post, says: James R. Powers, George Morris, Andrew Cissom and James A. Cissom have been arrested at Cleveland, Tenn., for passing counterfeit money, making ten arrests in this vicinity within a few days. The operations of the counterfeitors have been very extensive throughout this section for several months past.

Negroes Charged with Shooting Virginians

DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 8.—The people of South Boston, Halifax county, are terribly excited over the attempted assassination Tuesday of Hon. R. R. Noblin and others by negroes, who fired upon the party from ambush. Mr. Noblin, who was shot in the eye, and Julian Chappell was also shot, but not seriously. Three negroes have been arrested, and were brought here for safe keeping.

Election Echoes

Ohio Went Democratic by a Good Majority

GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATURE.

Campbell Gets Over Eleven Thousand Plurality—Speculation as to the Next United States Senator—Other Election News.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—The returns from every precinct in Ohio, unofficial, show that Campbell defeats Foraker by 11,454, and that the Democrats have both branches of the legislature, with eight majority on joint ballot. On the rest of the state ticket it is very close, and probably some on each ticket elected. It now looks as though the Republicans had the state treasurer, clerk of supreme court, attorney general and school commissioner, and that the Democrats had secured the lieutenant governor, supreme court judge and member of board of public works. It will take the official count to determine all below the governorship and this will be completed this week.

The Democratic scramble for the United States seatanship to succeed Mr. Payne has already begun. Hon. John A. Thomas, the rich Springfield manufacturer, is now here on the ground setting up the pins for that place. He contributed largely to the Democratic campaign fund, and is working to succeed Mr. Payne. Hon. Calvin S. Brice, chairman of the National Democratic committee, wants to be elected, and has men here figuring on his interest. Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, of Chillicothe, Mr. Campbell's competitor for the nomination is also in the field, as is ex-Representative George L. Couverse, of this city. Mr. Payne will not be a candidate for re-election. The other gentlemen mentioned are Hon. John R. McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer and Hou. James E. Neal, chairman of the Democratic state committee.

The Evening Post, the leading Democratic organ here, publishes the following interview with John R. McLean at Washington:

John R. McLean says he would not have the Ohio seatanship on a gold platter. This declaration of Mr. McLean is believed by his most intimate friends to be final. Mr. McLean made no secret of his desires in that direction in 1888, but since that time he has resided in Washington and gained an idea of what the position really is. He states his position to a newspaper man not long since, in which he stated manifold reasons why he would not and could not become a senator, even were he nominated.

Among other reasons was his dislike of being what he terms a lackey for office-seekers. Mr. McLean is independently rich and at the head of a great newspaper, and is satisfied with his lot. In fact he believes that as editor and proprietor of his great paper he occupies a position second to no one in the land. At the same time he has been loyal and true to the Democracy of Ohio, and sent his substantial regards to the party in that state.

The Post says: There is a growing feeling among the politicians here that Col. James S. Neal, who conducted the late campaign in such a brilliant and able manner would be the proper man to represent Ohio in the United States senate. He is young, brilliant and as a senator would be nearer the people than any other man who could be sent there. His election to that body, they claim, would inaugurate a new era in senatorial elections and put an end to the claim that none but millionaires could break into that body.

Massachusetts Returns.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The total footings for governor are: Brackett, Republican, 126,801; Russell, Democrat, 120,817; Blackmer, Prohibitionist, 13,854; Marks, Labor, 111. Brackett's plurality is 5,984.

The senate will be composed of 29 Republicans and 11 Democrats, as compared with 32 Republicans and 8 Democrats in 1888. There are 102 Republican and 78 Democrat returned to the lower house, a Republican loss of 18 representatives from last year.

Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 8.—Additional returns on the legislative ticket show that the Republican majority on joint ballot will be 8, thus insuring the reelection of Senator Allison.

While the Democrats claim their entire state ticket is elected, the indications are that the result on the state ticket, except governor, is doubtful.

Complete unofficial returns give Boies, Democrat, 6,743 plurality for governor.

The Result in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8.—At this hour unofficial returns from every county in the state except seven show a Democratic majority of 42,715. The house stands 79 Democrats, 14 Republicans; doubtful, 7. The senate stands: Democrats, 29; Republicans, 9; and doubtful, 1. This is the smallest representation the Republicans have had in the legislature in the history of the state.

Democratic Majority in Virginia 41,000.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8.—The Richmond Dispatch published a tabulated statement of the vote of the state, giving McKinley a majority of 41,000.

Cleveland Says Tariff Reform.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Ex-President Cleveland was interviewed Wednesday night on the election result. "It is evident," said Mr. Cleveland, "that the leave of tariff reform has at last leavened the whole lump. The west, which has suffered the most from the awful burden of tariff taxation has awakened.

The state platforms of both Iowa and Ohio were abreast of the St. Louis platform on the subject of tariff reform.

"The people have considered and passed judgment. It was for the people to decide. They are now deciding. It is enough for me to say that I am satisfied at the indication and results of Tuesday's election. The verdict in Virginia indicates that the south is still faithful to the Democracy of Jefferson and Jackson."

FURIOUS FLAMES.

Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Property Destroyed at Petersburg, Va.

PETERSBURG, Va., Nov. 8.—This city sustained the heaviest loss by fire yesterday it has experienced since the war. Flames were discovered about 3 o'clock in the morning in the rear of the store of A. Rosestock & Company or George H. Davis & Company.

Owing to the density of smoke it could not be ascertained in which it originated. Soon flames burst out of Rosestock's front door and spread themselves with lightning rapidity. An alarm was sounded, and the fire department responded, but, not being able to make much headway, help was asked from Richmond. That city sent two engines, but the fire was practically under control before their arrival, the train having been delayed en route.

The buildings in which the fire started were located in what is known as the "Iron Front" block, on Sycamore street, near Tabb. The block consisted of five stores, each five stories high, and was the handsomest in the city. The block was soon a mass of flames, which communicated to the buildings on each side and swept across the street, consuming sixteen places of business before they were stopped.

The stores burned on the east side of the street are: J. H. Roberts, furniture dealer; S. S. Bridgers, general commission merchants; A. Rosen

FRIDAY, NOV. 8, 1889.

To the Democracy of Kentucky.

At a meeting of the Democratic State Central and State Executive Committees, held in the parlors of the Phœnix Hotel, in Lexington, on Wednesday, November 6, 1889, it was ordered that the Democrats of Kentucky meet in a delegate convention in the city of Louisville, at 12 o'clock m., on the 28th day of May, 1890, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, to be voted for at the August election of 1890.

The basis of representation for each county shall be one delegate for each two hundred votes, and one of each fraction over one hundred cast for Grover Cleveland for President in 1888, provided that no county should have a less representative than one delegate.

It is ordered that every county shall select its delegates on the 17th of May, 1890, in such manner as the County Committee may determine. If from any cause the County Committee should fail to make provisions for the selection of delegates the voters shall meet in mass convention in the court house in such county, at 2 o'clock p.m., and select the delegates to which the county is entitled. In the city of Louisville the delegates shall be selected from the various Legislative districts in such manner and under the same regulations as apply to counties.

M. C. ALFORD, Chairman.

W. P. KIRKLAND, Secretary.

The Democrats carried Brown County this week by a plurality of about 1,300.

PRESIDENT HARRISON is welcome to all the comfort he can get out of the election returns.

SEVERAL Maysville Democrats scooped in some good Republican money on the Ohio election.

FORAKER ran sixty votes behind his ticket in his home county. That doesn't speak well for "Little Breeches."

CAMPBELL carried Ohio by over 4,000 outside of Hamilton County. Complete unofficial returns place his plurality at 11,454.

One of the fruits of the victory in Ohio will be the re-districting of that State Congressionally, which will give Democrats about as many additional members as the Republicans have gained in the four new States. Fortune seems to be favoring us.

ONE of the silliest explanations of the Republican rout in Ohio is that given by Mr. Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. He says "the dude element" were against Foraker. However, we mustn't be too hard on Halstead. He wrote the above when he was badly rattled—the morning after the election.

COMMENTING on the recent election, the Cincinnati Post says: "It is doubtful if the most pessimistic Republican in Ohio anticipated such crushing political defeat as the returns indicate. Apparently no one has been saved on the State ticket, and presto, change! the whole Commonwealth is under a Democratic regime."

KENTUCKY, Ohio, Iowa, Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Mississippi and Montana is the way the Democratic column reads this year, while the Republicans retain Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and assert their supremacy in three new States. Democrats are very well satisfied at the way things are going.

VIRGINIA, where alone the contest assumed anything like national importance, has been carried by the Democrats by a majority of 20,000 after a series of outrages which should certainly, and probably will, be the subject for Congressional inquiry. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

Bah! What right has Congress to investigate a State election? Just about as much right as it has to inquire into a municipal contest here in Maysville.

THE first thing the Democrats will do in the next Legislature will be to redistrict the State so as to give them about seventeen out of the twenty-one members of Congress from Ohio for the next election. —Portsmouth Blade.

Of course they will. "Turn about's fair play," you know. Under the present Republican rule, Ohio is one of the most gerrymandered States in the Union, only five or six districts being Democratic. It will be rather strange now if the Democrats don't give the Republicans some of their own medicine.

The one fatally damaging influence, the one tremendous blow which fell upon the party and shattered it, was the hideous forgery affair. * * * Never in the political history of Ohio were the bright prospects of a party overcast so suddenly and completely as when this abominable ballot-box business was exposed. The Republicans were defeated, irretrievably, on the day it was disclosed that a nasty campaign of mud-slinging had culminated in an attempt to blacken the name of Mr. Campbell by forgery.

There are assertions, made by those who would like to find a mountain which would fall upon them, that Sunday-closing or saloon proved disastrous. Such statements are preposterous. How does this alleged explanation account for the losses elsewhere in the State? The men who crushed the party by the exploiting of an infamous forgery will seek in vain for any escape from the responsibility. It is fixed.

The prices offered for cattle continue to tip the beam at exceeding low figures. Our stock buyers have become very much discouraged and say that they feel like turning their attention to something else for a livelihood.—Danville Advocate.

Says the Danville Advocate: "The hogs have been pretty well bought up in the county and shipped off. But few of the export or shipping cattle have been sold, our farmers not wishing to part with their fat stock at the present prices offered by buyers from the East."

Macey Bros. of Versailles, have sold to Samuel Gamble, of California, the chestnut trotting mare Four Corners, record 2:20 1-4, nine years old, by Mambrino Time and out of an old Abdallah mare, for $4,000 cash. At a horse sale in Lexington last year Four Corners sold for $1,500, but has increased her speed since then.

A party writing from Mt. Olivet says: "A more marked improvement in the productive capacity and general appearance of the lands of Robertson County, has hardly occurred in any county in this section of the State, nor have market value of lands appreciated in other adjacent counties in the last three or four years as in this county. Evidences of thrift and content are apparent, not only in the appearance of mother earth, adorned by comfortable and slightly residences, but are also manifested by the agreeable and happy faces of the people."

The Hudson passes down this afternoon. She left Pittsburg with all the freight she could handle.

The sunken Minnie Bay will be wrecked where she lies, opposite Moscow, all efforts to raise her having been abandoned.

The Portsmouth Blade is kicking because the Bonanza has been withdrawn from that trade. It says: "When the Big Sandy returns from doing substitute duty in the Louisville trade, it is thought some other arrangement will be made. They will probably take the Handy out of the trade and put in a canoe."

Railway News.

Eighty-three roads for the third week of October earned $7,027,351, an increase of $706,505, or 12.24 per cent.

Conductor Glass of the C. & O. was fined $25 a few days ago at Catlettsburg for running his train through the city at a rate faster than six miles an hour.

The Chesapeake and Ohio has added to its equipment several new chair cars, which are said to be very handsome. The Scarritt chair is used, and the cars are upholstered in olive plush.

The Louisville and Nashville Road showed an increase of 1,630 loaded cars handled at Cincinnati station in the month of October, as compared with the same month last year. Of this increase 555 were northbound and 1,075 southbound cars.

Maysville District S. S. Conference.

The Maysville District S. S. Conference of the M. E. Church, South, will not be held this fall as first contemplated, but next spring. Let those concerned take notice. A. REDD, P. E.

POLITICALLY, the Republicans haven't much to be thankful for this fall. They have met with defeat or heavy losses on almost every hand.

Annual Report of Governor Arthur C. Mellette.

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS.

Ten Million Acres of Valuable Agricultural Land Now Under Cultivation. Annual Report of the Commissioner of the Soldiers' Home — Ex-President Cleveland Calls at the White House — A Correction Made — Other Dispatches from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Arthur C. Mellette, governor of Dakota, in his annual report submitted to Secretary Noble, says the population of the territory is 850,000. Of this population he places 370,000 within the limits of South Dakota and 271,000 in North Dakota. The number of miles of railway is 4,463. The opening of the Sioux Indian reservation, the governor says, will doubtless stimulate railway building to a marked degree during the coming year.

Dakota, the governor says, is pre-eminently an agricultural region, 10,000,000 acres of land being under cultivation this year. Stock raising is also a rapidly growing industry, the increase in the value of live stock in the past nine years being 66 per cent. The subject of irrigation as a means to assist farming has attracted much attention during the past year and aroused popular interest in the subject. The only uncertainty in Dakota agriculture, says Governor Mellette, being the irregularity of the rainfall. There is a large demand for farm labor, wages being from $15 to $25 per month.

Bonanza farming, Governor Mellette says, is a feature of Dakota's agricultural progress. Several farms contain 15,000 to 17,000 acres. The governor of North Dakota, Hon. John Miller, raised this year 8,500 acres of crops. The wool industry is also developing, and will be one of the sources of wealth. In vegetables and fruits the report says Dakota stands without a rival. The mining industry is prosperous, and each year it is taking a wider range.

"The citizens of Dakota," says Governor Mellette, "are a God-fearing people." There are 1,000 churches in the territory. The number of banks is given at 346, with an aggregate capital of $9,130,600. Local deposits have been steadily increasing, an evidence of the growing wealth of the country.

Soldiers' Home Report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The annual report of the board of commissioners of the Soldiers' Home, near this city, shows that owing to limited accommodations admission was denied during the past year to a large number of men entitled to the benefits of the home but could support themselves outside. The commissioners point out the fact that the appropriation act of Feb. 26, 1889, looked up in the treasury $300,000 belonging to the home. The interest on this, with the receipts from other sources would have kept the institution self-supporting without making necessary any inroads upon the principal of the permanent fund. Last year's regular current expenses were $187,100; the reduction of the permanent fund was $86,478. The fund on Sept. 30 amounted to $2,269,463.

Mrs. Cleveland did not leave the carriage but left her card for Mrs. Harrison, who is visiting Mrs. Wanamaker in Philadelphia. She was driven away and sent the carriage back again for Mr. Cleveland. The question of jurisdiction set up by the counsel for defence was settled, but he will appeal the point to the United States supreme court. He obtained that the United States has jurisdiction over criminal cases in Navassa. The court is of the opinion that there is an inherent power in the United States to acquire possession and jurisdiction of this island by its discovery by a citizen of the United States. This power has been legalized by congress, and the jurisdiction of the United States is therefore complete.
